Important CPAP
Information Inside

This Is Your Resource
For Maintaining Your
CPAP Machine

A Graymark Healthcare Company

Dear SomniCare Patient,

By now I hope you've experienced the joys of a good night's sleep and all the benefits that come with it. If you're anything like the thousands of patients we've treated over the years, you may already be wondering how you ever lived without a CPAP or a BiPAP.

The people at SomniCare also understand that sleep therapy is not without its pitfalls. The adjustment period for sleeping with a CPAP can be a challenge and keeping up with the maintenance of your machine can be difficult. In fact, you may already be dealing with air leaks in your tubes, straps loosening on your mask, or perhaps you are no longer experiencing the same health benefits you were receiving previously. If this is the case, your machine may be overdue for some general maintenance. But there is no need to worry about hassles or unnecessary expenses. SomniCare is here to help.

With the aid of this simple brochure you can research the CPAP supplies you need for therapeutic success, order the items you know need replacing, or join our convenient automated supply program if you feel you're ready.

Thank you once again for choosing SomniCare as your sleep therapy provider. As always, if you have any questions about your care, comfort or the supply program, please feel free to contact us at:

Nasal Pillows

Rubber or foam piece that helps seal the mask. Even with normal use these items stretch, crack and wear away, causing leaks which diminish the effectiveness of your therapy.

Recommended Replacement Period: Monthly

Chin Strap

See "Mask & Headgear"

Recommended Replacement Period: 6 Months

Tubing

CPAP tubes are designed to be pliable for greater freedom while you sleep. Unfortunately, this also makes them more likely to tear and leak. They are also a common source for bacterial buildup.

Recommended Replacement Period: 3 Months

Cushion & Seal

Tightening and compression from normal use erodes the seal and diminishes the effectiveness of your therapy. Effective pressure seals are essential to your therapeutic success.

Recommended Replacement Period: Monthly

Filters

Just like the air filter in your home, these items need to be replaced regularly. Failure to do so will cause your CPAP machine to work harder, shortening its life span significantly. Also, like your tubing, filters are a common source for bacterial buildup.

Recommended Replacement Period: 3 Months (Disposable Filters) or 6 Months (Non-Disposable Filters)

Mask & Headgear

Just like your cushion and seal, normal use weakens the pressure seal which causes ineffective air flow and diminishing returns on your therapy.

Recommended Replacement Period: 3 Months (Masks) and 6 Months (Headgear)
